New York Wins Clean-Air Accord, Easing Limit on Midtown Parking

By the Staff

When New York City and the Federal Government announced yesterday that they had agreed on a deal to ease the city's parking restrictions, it was a victory for the city. The deal, which was announced after a 14-hour session of talks, allows the city to ease its parking restrictions in midtown Manhattan, a move that will help to ease the city's parking crisis.

In place of the parking ban, the city is offering to increase the number of parking spaces in midtown Manhattan, a move that will help to ease the city's parking crisis.
